Dr. Marian (Emmy) Betz, MD, MPH is a board-certified emergency physician who works clinically at the University of Colorado Hospital Emergency Department (ED) and also conducts research in injury epidemiology and prevention. She is an Assistant Professor of Emergency Medicine at the University of Colorado School of Medicine and an Assistant Professor of Epidemiology at the Colorado School of Public Health. She received her medical degree and Masters in Public Health degree from Johns Hopkins. In 2014, she was selected to serve on the Colorado Suicide Prevention Commission, and she chairs the Commission's committee on emergency services.

Dr. Betz's areas of research expertise are "lethal means restriction" (i.e., limiting access to guns and other lethal methods for those who are suicidal) and the care of suicidal patients in EDs. She has worked with various national organizations on issues of suicide prevention, including the Suicide Prevention Resource Center, the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention, and the Injury Control and Emergency Health Services Section of the American Public Health Association. She also co-founded and co-leads the Colorado Firearm Safety Coalition, a collaborative effort between public health and medical professionals and firearm retailers to reduce firearm suicides. Her research has received funding from the National Institute of Mental Health, the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention, and the Emergency Medicine Foundation, and she has served as Site Principal Investigator for the multi-site ED-SAFE 1 and ED-SAFE 2 trials.
